

her family would become aware of it, she would be in serious difficulty from the standpoint of perhaps physical abuse or being ejected from the home and things of that nature?

SENATOR LINDSAY: Yes.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: And you want to compel those girls to confront that when they fall into this situation of an unwanted pregnancy, is that correct? You want to compel those girls to confront what you and I have agreed does exist in Nebraska as far as bad consequences?

SENATOR LINDSAY: Well, it would be an affect of this bill, and I support the bill, so, yes.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: All right, is that a compassionate position that you have taken?

SENATOR LINDSAY: Well, it's...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Could you answer yes or no because you understand what compassion means?

SENATOR LINDSAY: No, I can't answer yes or no.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: All right, is it a noncompassionate position to compel somebody to go into circumstances which can be hurtful to them? Is there a lack of compassion in that?

SENATOR LINDSAY: I don't want to take your time on it, but I am going to say I can't answer straight yes or no because there are extreme situations in which, no, it would not be compassionate.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: All right.

SENATOR LINDSAY: There are the majority of situations in which, yes, it would be compassionate.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Is the cause of an unwanted pregnancy sexual intercourse? Must there be sexual intercourse before...

SENATOR LINDSAY: I have heard that, yeah.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...there can be a pregnancy.
